

Space Flight Is Again Delayed by Weather

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A high cloud cover today caused the cancellation of the second scheduled attempt to send astronaut Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom into space and brought about a delay of at least three days before another attempt can be made.

The shot today was scrubbed under weather conditions which had been marginal for at least 24 hours though clearing skies Tuesday night raised hopes that the attempt could be made.

At daybreak thin clouds at 23,000 feet hovered over this space center with its fueled missile ready to go. In two hours, however, the cloud bank settled 15,000 feet and blanketed the area.

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A solid cloud cover closed over this missile launching base today and a halt was called in the countdown on Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom's space rocket. It had been scheduled to blast off at 7 a. m. (EST).

If the cloud cover at 15,000 feet failed to break, there could be another postponement of the shot — this one for three days or more.

It was reported earlier that the rocketeers would have until 1 p. m. before making a decision on whether to wait for another day.

Since the rocket was fully fueled, the postponement would have to be at least until Saturday because it takes two days to clean out the tanks after fueling and another for a new countdown. Since firings are seldom scheduled on weekends, it could be put off until next week.

Man Found Guilty of Murder

JACKSON, Mo. (AP) — A circuit court jury found Sammy Aire Tucker, 26, of Fresno, Calif., guilty of first degree murder Tuesday in the slaying of a Cape Girardeau, Mo., policeman. Judge Ray Weightman fixed sentence at death in the gas chamber.

When Weightman passed sentence, Tucker's wife, Reva, screamed, sobbed and was heard to shriek, "Murder . . . Murder."

Tucker was tried for the shooting March 10 of Patrolman Donald Crittendon, 27, Crittendon and another officer, auxiliary Patrolman Herbert Goss, 67, were slain in a gun fight. Tucker was wounded. He was the only defense witness. The trial took two days.

Tucker named his companion, Douglas Wayne Thompson, as the triggerman. Thompson is serving a life sentence for another slaying.

Change Course on Berlin, JFK Appeals to Red

By DOUGLAS CORNELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy urged today the Soviet Union to reconsider a course he said threatens to disturb world peace.

At the same time, he announced that he would make today the final decision on any bolstering of military forces required to meet the Soviet menace to Berlin and other areas of the world.

Kennedy told a news conference in forceful, measured tones that he would place his decisions before America's allies later this week.

He said he would speak to the American people next Tuesday evening on this matter and present the program to Congress the following day.

Kennedy declined to go into details now on possible military measures. The administration has been considering calling up reserves and national guardsmen, among other things.

And again today, Kennedy made it plain, though not in so many words, that this country is ready to fight, if need be, to keep West Berlin from Communist engulfment.

We intend to honor our commitments," Kennedy said.

The President said that what the administration will propose in the way of taxes for deficit financing to pay for any host in military strength will be disclosed with announcement of the program.

He told a questioner that the present tax structure would bring in very substantial amounts if the economy is proceeding at what we hope will be a steady rate of growth.

The decision on taxes and spending, the President said, will be made in the light of what will produce the best economic situation for the United States in the coming months.

A record turnout of 427 reporters attended today's news conference. They filled the state department auditorium as far back as a partition two-thirds of the way to the rear of the chamber.

Kennedy started off with a lengthy statement on Germany and Berlin, a followup to Tuesday's note to Moscow and in many ways repetitive of that document.

In tone of voice as well as in words, Kennedy was tough without shaking any figurative fist.

He said that Russia's June 4 proposal to alter the status of Berlin, and to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany as a possible contingency is a document which speaks of peace but threatens to disturb it.

The real intent, he said, is to absorb East Berlin into the so-called German Democratic Republic while West Berlin would be called a free city but would lose the protection of the West and become subject to the will of a totalitarian regime.

The session with newsmen concentrated on Berlin, Germany and U.S. military preparedness. But it also ranged widely over other fields and, briefly, out into space.

In this latter area, Kennedy said the United States still has a goal of putting a man into orbit toward the end of this year.

Spelunkers Drowned in Passageway

ORLEANS, Ind. (AP) — Two young cave explorers were found drowned early today, lying side by side in an uncharted dead-end passage where a flash flood trapped them Sunday.

Ralph S. Moreland Jr., 25, Knox, Ind., and Tom Arnold, 25, Peru, Ind., had apparently crawled 150 feet up the two-foot high side passage when the first of three cloudbursts swamped the cave.

The two Indiana University graduate students evidently had been dead hours before the underground stream receded enough to allow rescue attempts to be started Monday.

The first heavy rain got them," said Robert Armstrong, 26, Indianapolis, leader of the party which found the bodies.

Armstrong said debris marks showed the water had reached the ceiling of the low cavern cell.

The bodies were two-thirds of a mile inside the twisting limestone cave, located eight miles west of this southern Indiana town and 30 miles north of the Ohio River. It took four hours to bring the bodies out.

Plane Down in Argentina Carrying 66

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — An Argentine Airlines DC6 crashed in flames today near Azul and officials feared all of the 66 passengers and crewmen were killed.

Officials feared some Americans may have been among the dead. The flight, a nonstop run between Buenos Aires and the Patagonian oil center of Comodoro Rivadavia, was a favorite of U.S. oil experts who shuttle back and forth between the capital and the oilfields.

The crash took place at Chichari, a farming center about 30 miles from Azul, which lies 160 miles south of Buenos Aires.

An airline spokesman said the plane, a four-engine model and one of the airline's newest, had attempted an emergency landing and burst into flames as it touched ground.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — An Argentine Airlines DC6 with 66 passengers and a crew of at least 6 crashed today near the city of Azul about 160 miles south of Buenos Aires.

The plane was traveling from Buenos Aires to Comodoro Rivadavia, an oil center on the Patagonian coast.

Airline officials said there may have been some American citizens aboard heading for the oil center.

A spokesman said he believed the DC6 attempted an emergency landing but burst into flames as it touched ground.

Legislature Action Asked to Redistrict

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — Rep. E. C. Gathings of the First Congressional District thinks a special legislative session can rewrite the 1961 redistricting law to avoid an at-large congressional race next year.

Gathings took this view in response to a query from the Pine Bluff Commercial.

I have had occasion to discuss this matter with a number of Arkansas lawyers who feel that should a shift in one or more counties be made in a new bill it would have the effect of nullifying petitions which have been filed to refer the act to a vote in the 1962 general election," he said.

Gathings' view is at odds with that of state Rep. Raymond Mays of Cleveland County, author of the redistricting act. However, Mays, like Gathings, wants to avoid an at-large race next summer. He has suggested circulation of petitions to get a special election on the law.

Mays said the constitution prohibits the legislature from acting on any proposal which has been referred to a popular vote.

The redistricting law puts Jefferson, Arkansas and Lincoln counties into Gathings' northeast Arkansas district. These counties led the petition campaign to get the law referred.

Filing of referral petitions suspended the law. Pending an early vote, which would require 65,000 signatures on a new set of petitions, congressional candidates would have to run at large both in Democratic primary and the general election in 1962.

The redistricting law cuts the number of Arkansas districts from six to four.

No Trace of Bank Holdup Pair Yet

TAYLOR, Ark. (AP) — A search for a husky gunman who held up a branch bank here and fled with $4,000 has spread into Louisiana.

Columbia County Sheriff D. C. Stevens said road blocks had been set up in northern Louisiana in an effort to locate the old model car in which the robber and an accomplice fled after Tuesday's holdup. The car in which they drove away from the bank was found abandoned on Highway 160 near here. Stevens said it had been stolen in Louisiana Monday.

The gunman entered the branch of the First National Bank of Magnolia, pulled a .22 caliber pistol on manager James Nipper and forced Nipper to put money from a cash drawer into a sack.

Before leaving the bank the holdup man forced Nipper and customer Max Knight, 17, into the vault, which could not be opened from the inside.

They were freed about five minutes later when Lowell Hudnall, an employee of a service station across the street from the bank, heard their cries for help.

Authorities said the gunman fled in the car with an accomplice who waited outside the bank. Road blocks set up in the area failed to turn up any suspects, Stevens said. He said county and state authorities have been joined by FBI agents in the investigation.

Former County Judge Garrett Is Acquitted by Jury

JFK's School Bill Is Dead for Present

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy called today for congressional action on his aid to education program, describing it as the most important legislation he has requested.

Kennedy told his news conference he hopes sponsors of the bill in the House will take advantage of every possible available procedure to bring it to a vote in that body.

The House Rules Committee voted 8-7 Tuesday to table for the rest of this year not only the general school aid bill Kennedy requested, but also two others.

Among other things, these would provide some aid through loans to public and parochial schools, and would provide college scholarships.

Referring to the Rules Committee vote, Kennedy said seven out of the eight members who voted to table the bills were not sympathetic to the legislation and did not support him in the 1960 presidential contest.

Kennedy said he believes there is strong support in the country for improvement of the educational system, and urged favorable action by Congress.

Kennedy said he is opposed to separating from the $2.5 billion over-all school aid bill a provision which would continue the federal aid now given to impacted areas where the school population has been increased by defense installations. Some members of the Congress have suggested that only the impacted areas provision may be passed in this session.

Congress would not meet its responsibilities, Kennedy said, if it passed only such legislation. He insisted that all school assistance should be treated as a unit.

A reporter suggested that opposition to giving aid to nonpublic schools had contributed to the stalemate of the educational legislation.

Kennedy said he thinks Congress ought to continue to provide loans to nonpublic schools for specific purposes. He noted that the Health, Education and Welfare Department had held in a report to the House that such loans would be constitutional.

Kennedy said he agrees with that position, so long as aid does not go across the board to such schools in a way he said would be clearly unconstitutional.

Private and parochial schools now may obtain loans for specific purposes under the National Defense Education Act. A bill to extend that measure would provide also for loans for some types of building construction for those schools.

Kennedy himself has said that direct general aid to parochial schools would be clearly unconstitutional.

Despite the rules committee's action, several steps are possible to salvage the entire school aid program. But time is given much chance of success.

Chief casualty in the eyes of House Democratic leaders was a bill carrying $2.5 billion in grants to the states for public school

Former Hempstead County Judge U. G. Garrett was acquitted of a charge yesterday that he allowed claims in violation of a state law and converted the proceeds to his own use.

Although the trial took two full days and a parade of 30 or more witnesses the circuit court jury took only about 15 minutes to return the not guilty verdict.

Former Judge U. G. Garrett deposited $1,141.01 with the county treasurer this morning, this being the sum in question during yesterday's trial in which he was acquitted by the jury.

Court reconvened this morning and a jury was selected to hear the state's case against Mrs. Wanda Grinnett, former secretary to Mr. Garrett, who was indicted on a charge of embezzlement or grand larceny by baillee.

A mistrial was declared this morning in the case of Mrs. Wanda Grinnett, after the jury was unable to agree. Judge Lyle Brown called the mistrial after the jury reported it was hopelessly deadlocked. The case was not set immediately for retrial.

Mr. Garrett went on trial at 1 p. m. today in connection with another case which involves $100. The prosecution charges that the former judge pocketed this amount belonging to the county in a tractor sale.

The prosecution completed its case by midmorning, charging that Mrs. Grinnett maintained possession of a $50 check which allegedly belonged to the county. L. E. Poteet, oil and gas distributor who was slated to go to trial this session, is charged with forgery and obtaining money under false pretenses. However, his case was put off this morning.

In yesterday's trial the issue centered about $1,141.01 which the prosecution charged the county paid twice to Mr. Poteet for oil and gasoline purchases. The defense admitted the possibility of two payments but contended that if so it was inadvertently with no criminal intent.

In testimony yesterday, Mr. Garrett explained that the confusion stemmed from his practice of paying county bills out of his own pocket when the county was short of money. After county funds became available he recovered his money by having the county warrants for payment endorsed over to him.

A former deputy county clerk, Arthur Anderson, verified this practice in his testimony.

Two other charges against the former judge are pending and will likely be heard during this session. One involves the sale of county equipment and the second is in connection with the digging of a stock pond.

Garrett, Poteet and Mrs. Grinnett were indicted by the Hempstead Grand Jury after an enlistment of six weeks of county records. A citizens group headed by B. W. Edwards and Monroe Kent with James H. Pilkinton as its attorney had a special audit made of county records. This audit was made available to the grand jury. This group was also responsible for the filing to four civil suits against the former judge calling for the return of certain county property which has been disposed of illegally.

Ford Seeks School Appropriations

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Education Commissioner Arch Ford will try to get a new appropriation of more than $2 million in school money lost when the 1961 omnibus act was invalidated.

Ford said Tuesday he would ask the Legislative Council to recommend reapportionment of $2,500,000 for schools when that agency begins hearings about Aug. 1 on the question of distributing surplus funds.

The $14.5 million omnibus act contained $2 million for teacher salary increases plus funds for a new vocational school and state vocational rehabilitation services. The Council must decide how to divide up the surplus funds to replace the omnibus act and meet construction needs which would have been filled by a proposed $60 million bond issue defeated by voters last month.

construction and teachers' salaries.
The two other measures were a $1.8 billion college aid bill and a $1.8 billion extension of the National Defense Education Act, which included $350 million for loans to parochial schools.

Only the public school bill is considered to have any salvage value. Part of it is almost certain to be saved. That's a section extending a program that provides aid to more than 3,000
scholar districts crowded with children of military and federal civilian personnel.

The program, which began in 1950, expired June 30. Its renewal was tied to the public school bill
by Democratic strategists in hope of attracting the support of the 319 congressmen whose districts get the aid.

Some Democrats still hope the strategy will work. Among them is Rep. Adam C. Powell, D.N.Y., chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, which handles the school bills.

Powell said he is considering bypassing the rules committee by calling the bill directly to the floor under a procedure known as Calendar Wednesday which permits a chairman on a specific day to bring up any bill his committee has approved.

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr.,
D.N.J., author of the public school bill, shared Powell's view that Calendar Wednesday offered the best chance to save at least part of the bill.

A major difficulty with the method is that a bill must be disposed of in one legislative day.
Many possibilities for thwarting
action are available to opponents of a measure under the House rules. Powell said if Calendar Wednesday is used it won't be until late August.

Other points touched on at the news conference were:

MONTEVIDEO — The chief executive said the Inter-American Economic and Social Conference opening Aug. 5 in Uruguay is the most important international gathering since the beginning of this administration because the future of freedom in this hemisphere largely depends on its outcome. But he said he will be unable to attend the conference himself, since Congress at that time will be dealing with many of the most important issues of the session, including the foreign aid bill.
He said he will remain here and work for these proposals.

SCHOOL AID—Kennedy voiced hope that House members will take steps to force school aid legislation onto the floor for a vote
before this session of Congress
shuts down. The House Rules Committee all but buried school legislation and erected a tombstone over it Tuesday by a 8-7 vote.

BOWLES—Kennedy said Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles
has complete confidence and that he intends to keep Bowles on until the end of his administration. But he left the door open for a possible shift of Bowles to some other task, although he said that his judgment is now that he should be undersecretary of state.

Reports circulated widely in the last few days that Bowles was on the way out and that Kennedy was dissatisfied with him as an administrator. The President said today he never has asked for Bowles' resignation, and Bowles has never offered one.

FREEDOM RIDERS — Mr.
President, a reporter asked:
"Will you give us your view of the Freedom Riders movement?" Kennedy replied everyone who travels for whatever reason they travel should enjoy the full constitutional protection given to

Kennedy Has Not Been an Explainer

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy has kept busy, but not as an explainer. He's being urged to start talking.

After almost six months in office
he's made less use of press and TV than President Eisenhower in the same time to get his ideas
across to the people.

By this time in his first term
Eisenhower had held 13 news conferences. So far Kennedy has had only 12. His 13th comes Wednesday.

Yet before Kennedy took office
his news secretary, Pierre Salinger, said he would be holding news sessions more often than they have been held in the past eight years.

In his eight year presidency Eisenhower had 192 news conferences. President Truman 324 in a little less than eight, and President Roosevelt 990 in 12 years.

At the rate he's going Kennedy
won't match any of them.

In his first six months Eisenhower had made two nationwide TV broadcasts, one by himself on national security, one with his Cabinet to discuss national problems.

In this same length of time
Kennedy has made one direct TV talk to the nation: His report on his Vienna meeting a few days before with Premier Khrushchev.

After his successful TV debates with Vice President Richard M.
Nixon last year—and particularly after his highly applauded inaugural address, which was shown on TV last January — it was thought Kennedy would make a lot of use of TV.

He has perhaps been seen on TV more often than Eisenhower
in his first six White House months. But he has been seen in action—on the White House steps or greeting visitors — not in explanatory talks to the nation.

As trouble increased for him—
Laos, Berlin and his trouble with Congress in getting his foreign aid bill through—there were repeated suggestions that the talk directly to the people on TV.

But for some reason which has never been explained he has avoided such a step, preferring to send messages to Congress or otherwise getting his ideas out.

Yet last Dec. 31 in defending his plan to have his news conferences televised live, Kennedy said it was part of the trend for a greater communication of presidential views to the people who are very much involved in his decisions.

As the Berlin problem intensified there were many presidential conferences with aides but, except for the talk after Vienna,
nothing direct to the country.

Now as the administration considered some mobilization—just in case things get rough around Berlin — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Monday urged Kennedy to give the country a sober, reflective and thoughtful analysis of what the country faces in the Berlin crisis.

Humphrey said he suggested
this to Kennedy—but got no response—in a report he submitted
after his recent trip to Europe.
The senator said there is a necessity to let the American people know what alternatives they face in Berlin.

Condemnation Suit Filed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A Pu-
baski Circuit Court jury Tuesday
ruled in favor of Arkansas Power & Light Co. in a suit filed by 102 insurance companies as a result of a 1957 explosion which caused $1,658,634 damage at an AP&L plant near Stamps. All the firms had written damage policies for AP&L and asked a declaratory judgment to force American Motorists Insurance Co. of Illinois
to pay the claim. The jury cleared American Motorists of them by the law and the Constitution.

They should be able to move freely in interstate commerce.
The President added that in his judgment there is no question of the legal right of Freedom Riders
to move in interstate commerce.
Whether we agree with those who travel and the purpose of their travel, Kennedy said, those rights stand, providing they are exercised in a peaceful way. Drawing a parallel he said: "We may not like what people print in a paper, but there is no question about their constitutional right to print it."

ferent chemical reactions.

Texan Heads L. R. School System

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The man who will become head of the Little Rock school system for its first downward extension of integration foresees a rebuilding job ahead.

Floyd W. Parsons, named Tuesday as the new superintendent, said in a television interview from Big Spring, Tex., that he thought Little Rock's schools had been damaged by the violence which erupted over integration of Con-tral High School in 1957-58. He said he looked forward to helping rebuild them.

Parsons will take over as Little Rock extends integration to the junior high school level. He has presided over desegregation of two Texas school systems, Big Spring and Beeville.

He both cases, he told the Arkansas Democrat, integration
was brought about by economics.
It was simply that the townspeople felt that it was not economically practical to operate a separate Negro high school for the small number of Negroes.

Big Spring last year had 371
Negro students in all - Negro schools, 30 in integrated elementary schools, 4 in integrated junior high schools and 1 in an integrated high school. The system had 406 Negro and 6,731 white pupils.

Little Rock has about 21,000
students. The once-white high schools will have 24 Negro students next fall and four of the five junior high schools will have a total of 25 Negroes.

Parsons said he had no plans dealing with school integration at the moment. School integration is peculiar to each specific community and only after the community and its philosophy is thoroughly understood can you move forward on a solution.

Parsons also said he favored strict discipline and good teaching as a basis for a school system. And he said the school system should exist for the benefit of the child and for the preservation of the American way of life.

Each body cell is capable of going through 2,000 to 5,000 different chemical reactions.

Printing Bids to L. R. Firms

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Four Little Rock printing companies received 45 of 66 state printing contracts announced today by Secretary of State Nancy J. Hall.

Parkin Printing Co. received 15 contracts, Arkansas Printing and Lithographing Co. 14, Democrat
Printing and Lithographing Co. 9
and General Printing Co. 7.

Arkansas Printing was one of the firms which objected to the method of opening bids on the contracts.

Harry Parkin, a member of the state Highway Commission, won two contracts for Highway Department printing.

The other contracts were scattered among firms over the state and Mrs. Hall said printers generally knew already who had received them.

Instruments Can't Take Place of Man

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —
Why another Shepard type short hop into space?

A main reason is to assure reliability of safe flight and return, says a space official. One trip doesn't do it.

But why not make this next trip to full orbital flight, like the one by the Soviet's Yuri Gagarin?

Answer, the bigger Atlas rocket needed for that is not ready.

Meanwhile, Capt. Virgil T. Gris-son's flight is another step toward building reliability, and that could pay off tremendous dividends in space knowledge.

Ex-official Defendant in Lenders Case

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP)—A former first assistant to the attorney general of Arkansas took the witness stand in U.S. District Court here Tuesday as a defendant in the Lenders Service mail fraud trial case.

Roy Finch Jr., of Little Rock,
one of 30 individuals on trial with Lenders Service Co., Inc., Little Rock, on charges of using the mails to defraud in a loan service business, said he never owned any stock in Lenders Service or its parent, Arkansas Business Development Corp.

Finch said he was retained by a minority group of stockholders
in Arkansas Business Development Corp., and its subsidiaries, including Lenders Service, who complained they had been unable to get access to ABDC and subsidiary records.

Prior defense witnesses had described Finch as one of a new board of directors, elected by stockholders of ABDC for a 90-day period in the spring of 1960.
The board served until the business went into bankruptcy in May of that year.

Finch said he was employed in the Arkansas attorney general's office for five years.

Finch was the last defendant of eight to take the witness stand.
Of the 30 individual defendants, 22 rested their cases when the government finished its case June 15. The trial started March 14.

Remarks of a Teenage Babysitter

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that make a teen-aged baby-sitter wish she belonged to the Peace Corps:

"I'm sorry, but you won't be able to use the phone, Susie. There seems to be something wrong with it. And the TV set is broken, too."

"I meant to give Mary Ann her bath, but at the last minute I got so rushed—you wouldn't mind, would you?"

"We only pay 35 cents an hour, but, on the other hand, the experience you get will prove highly useful later when you have a home and children of your own."

"Yes, I suppose it is all right, if your boy friend comes by so you can help him with his home work. But, remember, leave all the lights on—and the front door open."

"I do hope the children won't give you much trouble, Susie. The rain kept them in all day, and they have been rampaging around the house like Indians on the war-path."

"Oh, dear, I know you teenagers get so hungry—and there simply isn't a thing left in the refrigerator except two carrots and some lettuce. Do you like lettuce?"

"Don't tell me this pretty young thing is baby-sitting the kids. You go to the movies, honey, and I'll stay home and sit with the sitter."

"I'm afraid we don't have a rock 'n' roll record in the house. But here is a nice Beethoven symphony my husband and I have been planning to listen to ever since we bought it at the supermarket. Let us know if you enjoy it."

"I'll kneel behind her when she isn't looking. Sis; then you get in front of her—and push her real hard."

"Little Eloise can't go to sleep unless someone reads to her from her favorite book, Bunny Rabbit and His Forest Friends. Here it is—only 12 pages. If she doesn't fall asleep the first time read it to her again."

"You only had three children to baby sit the last time you were here. Since then we had the twins. The neighbors are going out with us and they are leaving their four children here, too, so altogether you have—let me see; three and two and four more make—oh, I never was any good at arithmetic."

"Hello, Susie, I'm calling from the country club. I know I told your mother we'd get you home by midnight without fail, but the party is just getting . . ."

Nudists Threaten Caravan to State

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A California nudist who skipped out on a promised July 4 appearance at the state capitol has pogaalode to Secretary of State Nancy Hall. But Mrs. Hall said today that the letter from Robert T. Clogher of California also threatened to bring a caravan to Arkansas.

Mrs. Hall said she's inclined to ignore the whole thing since she doubts Clogher will show up.

A letter from Clogher to the Arkansas Gazette announced the scheduled July 4 capitol appearance and about 500 persons showed up at the capitol. Clogher didn't appear.

Clogher apologized for making people, including Mrs. Hall, stand in the sun, Mrs. Hall said.

Convicts Escape in Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Two convicts slipped away from the Missouri Prison Farm in Callaway County Monday night, the Highway Patrol reported. They were identified as Malcolm Patterson Doston, 21, of St. Louis and Hubert Collins, 26, from Silem Springs, Ark.

Today, Berner has been field representative for the bureau in northwest Arkansas. He will be replaced in that job by Kelly Hargis of Little Rock.

Mrs. Robert Eugene Collier

In a double ring ceremony at First Methodist Church in Waskom, Texas, Saturday evening Miss Carol Lois Rich became the bride of Robert Eugene Collier. The Rev. L. L. Grissom, pastor, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Garland Rich, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Leo Collier of Waskom, formerly of Hope.

Vows were exchanged before an arch and tall candle trees entwined with woodwaria fern, and white ruffled gladioli were placed on each side of the altar. A program of pre-ceremony music was played by Mrs. Jerry Welch at the organ, and she accompanied Mrs. Billy Bush as she sang.

The bride chose as her matron of honor Mrs. Claude Dowden, Jr., of Waskom. Jack Harvey of Shreveport attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Garland Wayne Rich and Bill Stevens Rich, brothers of the bride. Candle lighters were John nie Meere, and Clifford Rich, brother of the bride, and the ring-bearer was the bridegroom's nephew, James Leo Launius of El Dorado.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gownned in a chapel length dress, fashioned from chintilly lace over tafetta. It was designed with fitted bodice and a sweetheart neckline outlined in seed pearls. Her shoulder-length veil of bridal illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a white Bible lapped with a bouquet of feathered carnations encircling a white hybrid orchid with satin streamers.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the church Fellowship hall.

After a honeymoon in Mexico City the couple will make their home in Waskom. Mr. Collier at Garland Wayne Rich and Bill Stevens Rich, brothers of the bride. Candle lighters were John choice may not be yours but that doesn't mean you are wrong. No parent should attempt to live vicariously in its child. Dear Helen: I am 14-years-old and belong to a riding club. Shortly after Christmas vacation I became interested in a 21-year old boy who works at the club. He liked me too. Our friendship flowered into a romance. Then I discovered that, aside from the romantic attachment we had little in common. Last week I told him it was all over. And still he won't believe me. How can I get rid of him, without saying, "I hate you" or "Get lost"? I am now interested in a 16-year old boy who speaks my language. Help me, please! I read and enjoy your column very much. —K.

Dear K.: You've been playing with fire. Evidently it's still smouldering else the poor boy would give up. You're too young to be taking him or any other boy seriously. Tell him so and don't act the princess condescending to talk to the pauper. Since you had little in common, you shouldn't have encouraged him in the first place. Call a halt on dating any boys, at least till this blows over. Your time would be better spent reviewing the subjects you intend to major in next fall at school. I'm scolding for your own good.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available.

Will Probe Farm Threat Report

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Investigations Subcommittee announced Monday it will hold hearings on allegations that some Agriculture Department officials threatened reprisals against agriculture groups opposing the Kennedy administration's farm bill.

The date of the closed-door hearings was left for later announcement. Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., the subcommittee chairman, said he has concluded after a preliminary study that a full-scale investigation involving public hearings is not warranted at the present time.

Stranded Dragline Protects Itself

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A huge dragline, stranded in the muddy Arkansas River, had to build itself an island of sand Monday to escape rising waters.

The $100,000 excavating machine was being used on a sandbar to rechannel a portion of the river downstream from here. Rapidly rising waters, fed by weekend rains, covered the sandbar and began lapping toward the expensive diesel motors.

Engineers couldn't get the machine to shore, so they put it to work building an island. Oak timbers were placed in front of the machinery and engineers hope this will slow the rushing waters enough to keep them from undermining the sand island and washing the monster downstream.

How About Those Sons-in-Law?

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: Why are you forever sniping at mothers-in-law and daughters-in-law? I would be the happiest mother-in-law in the world if I had a daughter-in-law. Instead, I drew the world's worst son-in-law. He didn't have a penny to his name when he married our daughter. We bought him a car, gave him thousands of dollars and still he comes around for a handout. Our only thanks is to them all. His folks have nothing and, if you ask me, are a poor run of shad. Why our daughter married the big-talk bully is beyond me. But she did and so, for her sake, I keep my mouth shut. Many say, "I wish I had a mother-in-law like you." Our daughter has lost what love she had for the bum but sticks it out for the children's sake. They and she would be far better off away from him.

No daughter-in-law could ever be as rotten as this fellow. — Steady Reader.

Dear Steady Reader: The argument that a divided home should be held together for the sake of the children doesn't hold the water it once did. How can your grandchildren be happy with a father such as you describe? Here is one instance where silence isn't golden. Back your daughter up. Make it clear to your son-in-law that she and her children are your first concern. If he won't mend his ways, advise your daughter to take him to court. The law would be on her side.

Dear Helen: My 17-year old sister and I are respected and popular in our community but to hear our parents talk, you'd think we were hellions. Because I threw over a boy I didn't love for one whom I do, they think I'm hitting the primrose path. The new boy friend is 20—just two years older than I — and neither smokes nor drinks. I quit school but am paying my way through night school by baby-sitting and doing housework at home for my keep. Sis goes with a guy 19 who is also very nice. Mom and Dad get tight-lipped at mention of his name. Should my sister give him up? Should I give up my boy friend? Are parents always right? —Not Happy

Dear Not Happy: Before answering your questions specifically, I should like to hear your parents' version and know more about the boys. Generally speaking, parents are instinctively right. If normal human beings, they love their children and want only the best for them. Of course, there are exceptions. Merely producing children doesn't qualify one to be a parent. Ask your father and mother why they don't approve of yours and Sis' boy friends. Their

Learned to Counterfeit on GI Bill

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A former Arkansan who learned engraving under GI bill on-the-job training has been charged in Atlanta, Ga., with making counterfeit 20 bills, the Secret Service said.

Leroy M. Lettner, special agent in charge of the SS Little Rock office, said Sanford Horace McIntyre, 40, has not entered a plea on a charge of manufacturing and conspiring to pass counterfeit notes.

He is free on $5,000 bond. Lettner said McIntyre learned engraving while working for the Fort Smith Southwest-American and Times-Record and made the counterfeit plates with engraving equipment he bought from the Rogers, Ark., Daily News.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie P. Gravit of Williamson, Ga., pleaded guilty to charges of passing the bills, Lettner said. Gravit was sentenced to five years in prison and his wife was placed on probation.

Lettner said McIntyre bought a printing press for $100 in Georgia after getting the engraving equipment for $150 from the Rogers newspaper.

Soviet-China Relations Not So Good

By WILLIAM L. RYAN Associated Press News Analyst

"Bratskaya nyerushiny adruzhiba" — brotherly inviolable unity — governs Soviet-Chinese relations, the Soviet press says. Invariably, the more signs there are of irritations, the more the chorus increases in volume.

A few days ago in Moscow, Pravda and Izvestia published—six days after Peiping had broadcast it — a curiously edited account of a Canadian correspondent's television interview with Chinese Foreign Minister Chen Yi. The Moscow version quoted Chen as saying, "The great solidarity between China and the Soviet Union is an important guarantee of peace in the whole world and the progress of humanity."

Chen Yi had put it differently. Said he: "The relationship between China and the Soviet Union and among all the Socialist nations is a fraternal international relationship of an entirely new type. It is built to the common base of Marxism-Leninism, on the basis of the principle of proletarian internationalism. Such a unity is unbreakable."

The difference seems important. The words "proletarian internationalism" occur frequently these days in Soviet-Chinese relations. The principle is specified as the basis of the latest Soviet economic-technical aid program for Red China. Briefly, the term means Moscow must be the boss of the boss of the world Communist movement. That doesn't mean the Chinese have to like it. They are grumbling. They seem to have much to grumble about.

From an examination of Soviet and Chinese documents and statements, the main points at issue seem to be these:

1. The course of the world revolution.

The Chinese protest Soviet reluctance to use naked military power to impose communism at bayonet point when opportunities arise, regardless of risk. Khrushchev, by implication, is accused of fearing a "paper tiger"—the United States.

The Russians, in a Chinese-language broadcast, told Peiping, "We neither will nor shall thrust the ideals of communism on other peoples by force of arms." The Soviet Union claims there are many ways for Communists to get power by "peaceful and parliamentary means," and force should be only a last resort.

2. Peaceful coexistence.

The Chinese argue that, according to Lenin, ultimate war between capitalism and communism is inevitable in the long run and the risk now is less than it may be years hence with the rapid pace of superweapons development. They insist peaceful coexistence is simply a matter of tactics in a temporary device useful only for propaganda but not to be carried so far as to indicate possibility of living indefinitely in peace with capitalism.

3. Disarmament and relaxation of tensions.

Peiping said: Any disarmament would be unrealistic. The United States, an implacable enemy of China and communism, must be resisted to the point of war. The West never will denounce war policy. On this score only renegades like Yugoslavia's Tito join the "anti-Chinese chorus." But the Russians said a degree of disarmament is needed to hasten Soviet economic development so it can become a weapon in overwhelming the West.

4. Economic aid.

Peiping says the Soviet Union is wrong in aiding non-Communist governments like Egypt and India and in being niggardly with the Red Chinese. Aid should go only to help the revolution. Egypt and India follow anti-Communist policies internally and thus Soviet help only retards Red revolutionary action. Such countries should be punished.

The Soviet Union, pushing the idea of Communist alliances with middle classes in such areas, are interested first in spreading Soviet influence in all continents by economic competition.

5. Communist ideology.

Moscow is and has been annoyed by Chinese claims to be forging ahead toward real communism by great leaps, through such devices as people's communes—virtually slave labor for the farmers—and backyard smelters. Peiping claims the right to adapt Communist development to Chinese conditions. The Russians insist it is impossible to skip stages in development, the same stages the Soviet Union went through—first the proletarian dictatorship, the building of socialism, the achievement of socialism. The last stage—still far away—is supposed to be the achievement of communism.

DAILY SHORT SHORT

SUSPENSE

By J. HARVY BOND

It was close to the stage entrance of the Grand theater just before curtain time. Two broadshouldered officers rushed through the door and sought out Quincy, the manager of a Shakespearean troupe which was just about to present Hamlet.

You'll have to postpone your performance," said the sergeant. "There's a homicidal maniac in the audience."

A maniac got into the role of Hamlet, blood would be splashed.

The manager received the news solemnly. He thought for a moment, then shook his head. There's a tradition in theater that the show must go on," he said. What makes you think the maniac is in our audience?" "Because he thinks he's Hamlet," said the policeman.

And you believe he's likely to interfere with the performance? Hurt someone?" "Exactly," said the officer. He's a frustrated actor. Like others suffering from his particular type of psychosis, he's dangerous if you try to stop him from doing what he wants to do. We think he's armed—a gun shop was burglarized soon after he escaped. If you start the show, there's no telling what he might do."

The manager paced the floor. If this madman tried to play do-it-yourself Hamlet with a loaded gun, disastrous results would follow. The manager could not expect the actors who were playing Claudius, Polonius and Laertes to do justice to their roles knowing they were in danger and if the maniac got into the theater auditions, blood would be splashed. On the other hand, the manager could not think of cancelling the performance and curtain time already had been delayed long enough.

We'll have to catch this fellow," said the manager. What does he look like?"

"The police officer sighed. We have a description, but no photo," he said. And the fellow is so ordinary looking that I'll bet there's 50 men in the audience who answer the description. We can't question them all in less than a couple of hours."

The manager realized that holding up the show that long would be out of the question. Already the audience was becoming restless.

"Sorry," said the officer. I think we'll have to start talking to some of those men in the audience."

No, wait," said the manager. Just wait a few minutes."

The officer hesitated. We have to do what we came to do," he said, and we'd better do it quickly. Unless you've got a good idea—"

There is a way to find him," said the manager. "We'll make him give himself away."

You can't start the show," said the policeman. Someone might get hurt."

I don't intend to start the show immediately," said the manager. We don't want the play disrupted. I have a plan."

The manager stepped out in front of the curtain and raised his hands for silence. The murmur of voices quieted.

Mantle Catches Maris in Home Run Making

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Mickey Mantle caught teammate Roger Maris in their home run race by hitting a pair Tuesday night as the New York Yankees defeated Washington 3-2 and regained the American League lead Detroit fell a half-game behind when Jim Gentile hit a 10th-inning home run that gave Baltimore an 8-7 victory over the Tigers.

Mantle tied Maris, who was 4 for 4 by cracking a 3-3 tie in the eighth inning with his 34th home run. They are 17 games ahead of Babe Ruth's record-60 pace of 1927.

Boston belted Cleveland 9-2, the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 4-3 and the Los Angeles Angels defeated Minnesota 4-1 in the other AL games.

In the National League, Milwaukee whipped Cincinnati 12-3, trimming the Reds' lead of the title, second place Los Angeles to 3 games. St. Louis swept a two-night pair from the Chicago Cubs 8-3 and 7-5 in the only other games scheduled.

Mantle batted in three runs with his two big homers, both off loser Joe McClain 7-9. Yankee relief ace Luis Arroyo (5-3) was the winner.

Gentile's home run came on a 32 pitch by losing reliever Bill Fischer (2-2) — after the Orioles slugging first baseman had been called out on a top by the plate. He got his extra swing when third base umpire John Flaherty.

The Orioles had come from behind with six runs in the seventh inning. They chased Tracer and Frank Lary in the rally, which included a two-run homer by Hank Foiles and a three-run homer by Jackie Brandt. Al Kaline and Rocky Colavito hit home runs for Detroit. Hoyt Wilhelm (7-4) was the winner in relief.

A pair of two-run homers by Gary Geiger gave the Red Sox a 4 to 1 lead in three innings at Cleveland and beat Mudcat Grant (8-4). Rookie Don Schwall (9-2) went all the way for the victory.

Nellie Fox put the White Sox in the lead with a two-run triple in the seventh inning. They beat the loss on reliever Jerry Walker (3-6). Juan Pizarro (6-3) was the winner.

The Angels grabbed eighth place from the Twins as Lee and George Thomas the unrelated rookies, hit home runs behind the seven-hit pitching of Ken McBride (9-5). Pedro Ramos (6-11) was the loser.

Bond Vote Still Not Tabulated

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Chief deputy Secretary of State D. D. Glover says tabulation of the June 27 election in which a $60 million bond proposal was defeated cannot be completed until official returns are received from Jackson and Monroe counties. Glover said election officials in the two counties said the reports will be filed as soon as possible. Unofficial returns from the special election showed a vote of 471,554 to 157,622 against the bond plan.

West Notes Bring Routine Red Grumble

By RAYMOND E. PALMER

LONDON (AP) — The Western notes rejecting Nikita Khrushchev's demands on Berlin brought a routine disapproving comment from Moscow Tuesday night. Soviet propaganda organs obviously awaited guidance from the Kremlin.

West European newspapers generally approved the firm tone taken by the United States, Britain and France, but some expressed doubt it would do much to deter Soviet action in Germany.

Hope was expressed that the two sides would get together very quickly and negotiate the explosive issue.

Moscow Radio, in a German language broadcast, accused the Western Allies of aiding and abetting the sinister forces which seek to start another war.

It is no coincidence that the news that the Western powers are opposed to the signing of a German peace treaty is being accompanied in the United States by an unprecedented war hysteria, the broadcast said.

The Western notes rejected Premier Khrushchev's threat to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany and turn over control of supply routes to West Berlin.

Tractor Team Back to Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fidel Castro's 10 prisoner negotiating team will return to Havana Sunday but relatives will continue to appeal for funds to buy their freedom. The prisoners were sent to this country last month to negotiate the trade of American tractors for about 1,200 captives taken in the unsuccessful April 17 invasion.

Weather Alert in One Section

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The U.S. Weather Bureau here said a severe thunderstorm alert which covered a portion of Clay County for six hours expired on schedule Tuesday night with no reports of any damaging storms. Portions of Missouri and Tennessee also were included in the danger zone of the alert, which had warned of a few severe thunderstorms with hail and damaging winds.

lin to the Communist East German regime unless the West joined in a peace treaty with both West and East Germany.

East Germany's official ADN news agency lashed out at the stand taken in the notes, declaring that none of the Western Allies grasped the fact that West Berlin is in territory belonging to East Germany.

Western Europe agreed generally that the Big Three had given the Soviet Union fair warning on the Berlin question.

U. S. to Make Final Plans on Berlin

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy announced he is making final decisions today on U.S. military measures to meet the Soviet challenge to the Western powers' position in Berlin.

Declaring We intend to honor our commitments, Kennedy told a news conference he plans:

1. To make a speech to the nation on the Berlin crisis next Tuesday night.

2. To send a report and recommendations to Congress Wednesday.

These steps will be taken after consultations with Britain, France and other NATO allies later this week.

The decisions on action, Kennedy told his news conference, will come at a meeting this afternoon of the National Security Council, the top policy-making body composed of his chief diplomatic and military advisors.

At the same time the President issued a new appeal to the Soviet government to reconsider its course on Berlin and turn aside from a path which could lead to war.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy called a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for today and the National Security Council for Wednesday to canvass the nations military ability in the face of Soviet threats to world peace.

The meetings are the windup phases of an urgent military study. Kennedy asked the Pentagon to take another look at military power particularly of a conventional type more than a week ago.

The White House said the red view should be finished by late this week.

The actions followed Soviet demands over Berlin and Russia's decision to halt a reduction of its military manpower and increase its defense budget by a third.

No topics of discussion were announced for the 5 p.m. EIT session with the Joint Chiefs of staff — a session announced belatedly by the military review obviously was coming in for attention.

An presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger said "I understand the study is one of the things to be discussed tomorrow afternoon when Kennedy brings the National Security Council to the White House."

On Capitol Hill Sen. Robert Kennedy acting chairman of a Senate Defense Appropriations Committee said Kennedy informed him that the world crisis is "a very real one" and that supplemental appropriations bill would be sent to Congress before the weekend.

Giving no details of the bill, Robert said a top level conference would be held on Wednesday.

City folk love to go outdoors after a rain. The air seems clearer, fresher and sweeter. Does rain purify the air? The U.S. Public Health Service says they found there is almost as much dust and soot in the air during and after a rainfall as before. It just doesn't seem like it.

Shreveport Defeats the Travelers

By VERNON BUTLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Doug Gallagher has been having more troubles this season than most of his fellow Birmingham pitchers, but when the big left-hander has a good night he usually makes it a memorable one.

He improved his season record to 7-8 last night with a three-hit shutout as the Barons protected their narrow Southern Association lead with a 5-0 victory over Mobile. Rookie Gallagher also swung a potent bat. He drove in a single in the fourth inning and thus won his own ball game. It was his second shutout of the season.

Chattanooga kept the pressure on Birmingham by beating the Nashville Vols 8-5 behind the strong relief pitching of Lou DeBale. Atlanta remained 4 1/2 games off the pace by shading Macon 8-7 in 10 innings, and Shreveport climbed into a fourth-place tie with Little Rock by topping the Travs 4-3.
